Practice Sets

Mastering the LSAT is all about gaining experience and developing skill. Building an intuitive foundation first is the best way to tackle questions on test day. To that end, we set a goal of completing at least 1,700 practice questions consisting of real LSAT questions in the form of practice sets.

Learners must complete at least 2500 questions total in your online Blueprint account (800 questions from the eight required full-length exams + 1700 additional questions) to be eligible for the guarantee.

Learning Modules

Pework consists of completing 2-7 learning modules before each lesson. Each module contains video instruction by our LSAT experts that break each concept on the LSAT down into understandable, digestible chunks. But it's not just video; quizzes are mixed in throughout to ensure your understanding along the way. These modules are listed in numerical order on the Resources page of your Blueprint LSAT account, and they also appear in your Personalized Study Plan in the same order they appear on this table. So you can reference this chart to track your work, but go through the Study Plan in order. Depending on the parameters of your study plan, all modules may not appear on your study plan page. To confirm that you have completed all modules, please visit the Resources page (lsat.blueprintprep.com/resources/modules). All modules must be completed prior to the official exam date to be eligible for our guarantee.

Practice Exams

Although you will start your course with a diagnostic exam & take another about one-third of the way through, most of the 10 practice exams you complete should be done later in the course, since you'll need lots of untimed practice first to build a foundation necessary for LSAT success.

Note: If you are taking the LSAT soon after your final lesson, complete the practice questions & extra exams as laid out in the chart here. If you are taking the LSAT at a later date, follow your Study Plan as-is, saving the Additional Practice questions & extra exams for after the course ends, as you approach the LSAT date.

Help Center

Our goal is to help you score as high as you possibly can on the LSAT, and we hope (and sincerely believe) that this Pacing Guide will be a big help in reaching that goal. But we want to make sure you have all of your questions answered. Check out our Help Center (help.blueprintprep.com), located in the bottom-right corner of your account page when you log in. There, you can find in-depth articles covering everything about the LSAT, your course, and anything else you can think of.
